SESSION INFORMATION

KEYNOTE SESSION

Eulogy for Artificial Intelligence: What Care Futures Will We Build for the Post-A.I. Era?

This keynote presentation features a nationally renowned nurse researcher and inventor who will discuss current and emergent applications of artificial intelligence (A.I.) and their impacts on communities we accompany in care. Following this session, you will be able to apply principles of data feminism to contemporary challenges related to A.I. for health care and articulate a vision for post-A.I. care work and care environments aligned with nursing ethics and their personal values, and steps that will be necessary to manifest that future.

Rae Walker, PhD, RN, FAAN (they/them) is an Associate Professor, Fellow of the American Academy of Nursing, and the only nurse Invention Ambassador for the American Association for the Advancement of Science. They direct the Nursing PhD Program at the University of Massachusetts Amherst where they co-founded and direct the multidisciplinary research group Health Tech for the People, which focuses on critical evaluation of artificial intelligence and AI ethics. Following service in the U.S. Peace Corps, they completed their nursing training, PhD, Certificates in Nursing Education and Health Inequities, and a Postdoctoral Fellowship at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore. They teach courses on data narratives, measurement, and power, and their scholarship focuses on community-directed health innovation and digital defense against technologies and data regimes that cause harm. In 2021 they were awarded UMass Amherst's Distinguished Teaching Award. Their advocacy for nurse-led innovation, design justice and more inclusive invention ecosystems has been featured on numerous podcasts, the TEDx stage, and in magazines such as Forbes, Scientific American, Science and on NPR.
